I:

1. The method according to claim 1 relates to the production of a bristle consisting of thermoplastic polymers. It is appropriately delimited over the closest prior art, document WO-A-94/13461 (D1). In order to improve the stability of bristles of this type, it is proposed that the polymer is injected into the mold at a pressure greater than 500 bar, the bristle channel having a breadth to length ratio of $\leq 1:10$.
2. Since the prior art cited in the search report does not disclose or suggest measures such as these, the method according to claim 1 thus appears to satisfy the requirements of PCT Article 33 with respect to novelty and inventive step.
3. The reasons given in regard to claim 1 similarly also apply to claim 31, which is directed to a device. Therefore, the subject matter of this claim also appears to satisfy the PCT requirements with respect to novelty and inventive step.
